

NUR 222 : Pathophysiology

This course provides students the foundation to achieve an understanding of pathophysiology associated with diminished health states. Prior knowledge of anatomy and physiology is integrated into the principles of health alterations for selected disease and injury processes. Students begin to acquire critical thinking and clinical reasoning skills as a basis for developing clinical judgment in the care of adult patients with diverse healthcare needs.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

Anatomy & Physiology I & II, Medical Terminology, Chemistry, or consent from faculty.